DON'T KEEP YOUR COMPANY FROM MAKING A PROFIT!

“Burned Out and Hating Work? Life’s Too Short!”: A feeling of lack of control over commitments and a growing tendency to think negatively are two common symptoms of burnout and could result in serious health issues for you or an employee! Get practical ways to overcome this service industry problem.

“Solutions for the Top Ten Mistakes Remodelers Make”: Are you making common mistakes that prevent your company from making a profit of your jobs? Learn from others before you make the same mistakes!

ABOUT OUR SPEAKER: Tim Faller of Westerly, RI, founded Field Training Services in 1999, a firm committed to training production staff in good job-site management and helping companies develop training programs for their field staff. For 12 years Tim worked as vice president of the new homes division at Hopkins & Porter Construction in Potomac, MD, where he started as Lead Carpenter, became Production Manager, and then helped begin the New Homes Division. Based on his extensive experience, Tim has conducted many successful lead carpenter training programs across the country.

His book, The Lead Carpenter Handbook: The Complete Hands-on Guide to Successful Job-Site Management was published in November 1998, and his Lead Carpenter Audiobook was published in October 1999. While at Hopkins and Porter Construction, Tim developed a training seminar for Lead Carpenters through the local NARI association that later became the basis for the NARI Certified Lead Carpenter Program. Tim is also a member of ExpertNet, a network of industry experts sponsored by Remodelers Advantage, Inc. in Laurel, Maryland. In July of 2007, Tim and 3 others, were asked to speak at the very first Remodeling Conference in Canberra, Australia, an event that was the forum for announcing the formation of a professional trade organization specifically for Remodelers in Australia.
